ONE CHECK WIPES OUT MONESSEN CHURCH DEBT

STORIES AID TO TEACHING

They Are of Little Value, However, Unless Teacher Enters Into Recital With Enthusiasm.

All children love stories. The earliest memories of most of us are intertwined with the wonderful narratives of fables and goings told by grand-parents at bedtime. And so vivid were the impressions made, that even now, in spite of our scientific knowledge and logical reasoning, we sometimes find ourselves unconsciously believing in them.

The teacher's love of stories is a vital factor in the success of a successful teaching. But however a story is told, it should be a source of joy to the listener.

Conscientious teachers, taking up the task of storytelling as an added obligation of school duty, would find the results are not what the students of other story-tellers had led them to believe. Story-telling as a duty, unlightened and unenjoyed by a teacher, is not the way to bring to the listeners, can never prove a success.

The story-teller must enter with all his heart and all his enthusiasm into the life and beauty of the story he is telling, in order to achieve the best results. Without this he cannot win the response of his hearers, nor reap the reward which should be his own.

WRITING IS MANUAL LABOR

In Five Hours Average Penman's Fingers Travel Over a Third of a Mile of Paper.

The average person has no idea how much muscular effort is expended in writing a letter.

A rapid penman can write 50 words a minute. To do this he must draw his pen through a space of 10 1/2 feet. In 40 minutes his pen travels a furlong and in five hours a third of a mile.

In writing an average word the penman makes in the neighborhood of 10 curves of the pen. Thus in writing 50 words to the minute his pen would make 500 curves, or 500 curves in an hour and 58,400,000 in a year of 300 days of ten hours each.

The man who succeeded in making 1,000,000 marks with a pen in a month was not at all remarkable. Many can make 4,000,000 while merely writing.

First American M. D.

The first native of English-speaking America to receive the degree of Doctor of Medicine was William Bull, who died in London just a century and a quarter ago. He was born in South Carolina in 1710, and in his young manhood went to Europe to study medicine, receiving his M. D. degree at Leyden. He practiced his profession with considerable success in his native colony, and in 1745 became lieutenant governor of South Carolina, a position he retained until the revolution. Remaining loyal to the crown in 1782 he accompanied the British troops to England, where he resided during the remainder of his life. Lawrence Braham was the first physician in the English Colonies of America, arriving in 1610, and holding the position of physician general of the colony of Virginia for one year. His successor, John Pot, was the first permanent resident physician in the colonies.

Facts About the Eye.

There are any number of different nerves and muscles which must work in harmony, or vision will be defective. The great switchboard controlling all these motions must act immediately, making the proper connections between the brain which is calling for a number, and the many wires which have to act to connect all of the nerves and muscles which must focus the eye upon the object to be seen. The eyeball must be turned in the proper direction, so that the light strikes the pupil properly and the pupil itself must expand or contract according to the distance of the object, in order to see it clearly.

Centipedes and Scorpions.

Centipedes and scorpions are occasionally found on the desert by turning over large stones or poking into a mass of rotting wood. They may be seen also in old adobe houses around chimneys and fireplaces. The former, relative at home druggies venomous creatures wriggling all over the land scape, but it is not so in reality. Moreover their sting is not so deadly as to cause one to be shied out as a herc for having been bitten. Unless one's blood is in very bad condition it causes little more inconvenience than a bee sting.

Left Handed.

Walter was on his new bicycle, which he did not manage very well, and he ran into the clockmaker, who was going along the street, reading a book.

"See here, young man," exclaimed the teacher wrathfully, "why don't you go to the right?"

Walter pondered a moment and then said, with a smile, "I'm left handed."

Sheep-Killing Dogs Cunnning.

According to Rev. Dr. Andrew Schriver, the sheep-killing dog will travel long distances in search of prey, and after the slaughter will go to the nearest brook and by the light of the moon comb the telltale fleece out of his paws, carefully pick his teeth, wash his jaws and then come into public view with an aspect of supreme innocence.

On advice of the General Adjustment Bureau, the insurance companies interested have agreed to settle for the damage done the George Washington statue on the court house at the commissioners' figures of $4,000. There are 88 companies holding policies on the county property, and 12 of these had already settled on the basis named. The commissioners on Tuesday authorized suit to be brought. Something evidently caused the bureau to come to time.

SETTLING A RATTLER.

Prairie Dogs Did the Job Well by Burying Him Alive.

It would not seem a very easy thing to bury a snake alive, but that is what an Oklahoma man saw some prairie dogs do.

He was resting under a tree when he noticed a commotion among some prairie dogs near him. They would run up to a certain spot, peep at something and then scamper back. Looking more closely, he saw fifteen to twenty dogs about a rattlesnake, which presently went into one of the dogs' holes.

No sooner had it disappeared than the little fellows began to push in dirt, evidently to fill up the hole. By the time they had pretty well covered the entrance the snake stuck his head up through the dirt, and every dog scampered off to a safe distance, all the time barking.

The snake crawled to another hole about a rod distant and went in. Then forward came the dogs again, and all went to work to push up earth to the hole. This time they succeeded and completely covered the entrance. This done, they proceeded to beat the earth down, employing their noses for this purpose. When they had rendered the earth quite hard they went away. The observer examined their work and was surprised to find that they had packed the earth in solid with their noses and had sealed the snake inside.—Los Angeles Times.

ANCIENT ANIMAL GIANTS.

Monster Sloths That Were as Large as a Rhinoceros.

In an account of the fossils of giant animals of Argentina to be seen in the Museum of La Plata the Rev. J. A. Zahm, author of "Through South America's Southland," calls special attention to the mylodon, a ground sloth as large as a rhinoceros and related to the megatherium that flourished thousands of years ago.

The mylodon may have lived within comparatively recent times. Only a few years ago Nordenskjöld discovered in a cave in southwestern Patagonia a large piece of well preserved skin covered with greenish brown hair and small bony knobs that was recognized as the skin of the mylodon.

There is good reason to believe that the mylodon was still browsing in the forests of Patagonia as late as fifty years ago. Indeed, there are naturalists who contend that it is still living in some of the caves of southern Chile.

So strong was the conviction that as late as 1902 an expedition started from England the chief object of which was to search for a living mylodon, and although it failed to find one, there are men of science who continue to believe that a living mylodon will yet be found somewhere in the forest depths of southern Chile or Argentina.

VETERANS CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY OF COMRADE

Civil War Survivors Gather Upon Invitation of Jacob Wise at Dinner—Interesting Display of Relics Shown

Reminiscences of Civil war experiences were in order when Thursday evening Jacob Wise, one of the most active of the few veterans left, entertained comrades at his home at 318 Washington avenue at a dinner. Eight sat down to the table of this number there were but two who were not soldiers of the great war of the sixties. The occasion was in honor of Mr. Wise's 69th birthday and was simply a get-together gathering for the "vets." Music on a new Edison was rendered to the delight of the soldiers both before and after the meal and numerous stories of the battles in which each had engaged were related.

Mr. Wise displayed the articles of historical value he had preserved from the war. They were trinkets that he had used through the years of fighting or had gathered up from the fields of battle. A part of a history of names that had been recovered from a fire, a gun, a bayonet, his army fork and spoon and any number of such articles made up the display, together with the famed Lincoln flag that Mr. Wise possesses and that the Veteran Guard of Charleroi honors.

Those present were William Geho, Robert Booth, R. L. Culbertson, Samuel Crawford and John Senft, all veterans, James S. Russell and Earl McGuire. A birthday cake containing 69 flags and a tiny gun was cut in honor to Mr. Wise.

Card of Thanks.

AMONG THE THEATRES

COYLE THEATRE—CHARLEROI

This week at the Coyle theatre Burton Holmes travel pictures have been among the leading attractions. Each day one of the pictures was shown. On Monday the travel picture depicted scenes among the "Cliff Dwellers of Arizona." The Grand Canyon of Arizona was shown Tuesday and on Wednesday the life of the West Point Cadets was shown. Tuesday the Paramount picture shown was "Unprotected," a Lasky production featuring Blanche Sweet. This was an interesting drama of the southern prison camps. Harold Lockwood and Mae Allison appeared in the leading roles of "Big Tremaine" which was the leading attraction Wednesday. "A Son of Erin" with Dustin Farnum in the role of Dennis O'Hara was shown Thursday. Friday the Fox production of "Romeo and Juliet" with Harry Halliard and Theda Bara in the stellar roles will be presented.

MAJESTIC—CHARLEROI

Special pictures were featured at the Majestic theatre each day this week. Christmas day Louise Glaum and Howard Hickman appeared in the leading roles of "Somewhere in France." "The Wharf Rat" with Mae Marsh and Robert Herron was the Tuesday feature. Wednesday, Robert Warwick and Gail Kane enacted the leading parts of "The Heart of a Hero," a thrilling drama. "Love Never Dies," a picture featuring Ruth Stonehouse and Franklyn Farnum was shown Thursday. Friday's attraction was "A Gamble in Souls" with Dorothy Dalton and William Desmond. Announcement is being made of "The Vagabond Prince," starring Dorothy Dalton and H. B. Warner, which will be the Saturday attraction at the Majestic. Many interesting pictures have been booked for the coming week.

PALACE—CHARLEROI

All previous business records were broken this week at the Palace theatre, where ultra fine vaudeville bills were presented by Manager Barnhart. The opening three days Louise Kent & Co. appeared with the comedy dramatic performance, "Sold." Bellety, the "Musical Dairy," carrying about a half carload of special scenery for the act. Leonard Kane appeared as "The Dancing Adonis," with special scenery and costumes. Six shows were given Christmas day to packed houses. For the last half of the week, Manager Barnhart presents another bill direct from the Harris theatre in Pittsburg. Sidney Shepard and associated players are appearing in the playlet, "The End of the World," the time of their scene being New Year's Eve. McBride and McBride are musical entertainers with a most acceptable musical act. Buel and Demaris are making their customary hit with novelty athletics.

NEW DAVIS—PITTSBURG

New Year's festivities at the New Davis Theatre week beginning Monday morning, January 1 will span a wide scope of varied dramatic artistry. Nine acts are announced for the daily matinees and evening performances and for the extra show, which is to be given New Year's afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, immediately following the regular matinee. Edwin Ardon, the distinguished star of legitimate drama, is coming to present Oliver White's odd little one-act play of the present day in New York City entitled "Close Quarters." He will be supported by Mr. Robert Wayne, one of the most accomplished actors that ever played with the Harry Davis Stock company. Nina Payne, who appeared in the pantomime, "La Somnambula," is to offer an elaborate and imposing series of character studies in dance. "The Dancer's Dream," which is the piece de resistance of her entertainment, is an elaboration of the solo dances Miss Payne performed in "La Somnambula." David Sapirstein, one of the foremost American pianists, who ranks with Paderewski, Bauer and Godowsky, will play a group of piano forte selections which will show his technique, touch, sympathy and power. Phil Kelly and Joe Galvin, delineating a type of Broadway actor and an Italian immigrant, will revel in broken English and funny songs. The tanbark ring, which was produced no better equestrians than Bradna and Derrick, who were so long featured with Barnum and Bailey's Circus, will be transplanted to the Davis stage with an act that will thrill by its exhibition of grateful and daring horsemanship.
